STRETCH YOURSELF.

Do It the First Thing After You Wake in the Morning.

A splendid thing for the body is stretching. When you first wake up in the morning, take a good, long stretch. Stretch the legs as far out sideways as possible. Then stretch them over the head as far as you can reach, and at the same time stretch the feet downward as far as you can. Raise the feet and stretch upward just as high as you can, and then lower the feet and legs very slowly.

When you get out of bed, raise your arms over your head, and, standing on tiptoe, see how near you can reach the ceiling. Then walk about the room while in this position. Stand on the right foot and stretch the right arm forward and upward as high as you can, while at the same time the left foot is raised from the floor and stretched outward, and the left hand is stretched backward and downward. This is a fine exercise for the whole body and is especially good for the waist and hips, making them firm and strong. Standing on the left foot this exercise can be reversed.

If you have been sitting in the same position for a long time reading, studying, writing or sewing and the muscles have become tired and cramped, the best thing to do is to get up and stretch. Stretch the arms upward and outward and forward and backward. Lift the shoulders as high as you can and drop them. Expand the chest and breathe deeply, or, sitting in the chair, stretch the hands upward, lift the feet from the floor and stretch them forward as far as possible, any way you give the muscles a good vigorous stretch.

When one is very tired, there is nothing more restful than stretching the muscles and then relaxing.

Getting Even

A Lancashire lad went into a large postoffice and asked for a penny stamp. "Next counter," said the clerk briskly. "Can't you read the labels?" The lad did not answer. He went to the counter indicated, on which was a legend: "Postage Stamps," and bought one. Then he seized it to the letter and went back to the clerk he had first addressed. That individual was checking postal orders. When he had reached the end of the book he looked up. "Well?" he asked. "If I post this letter tonight," inquired the lad, "will it get to Bolton tomorrow morning?" "Certainly it will," "Well, then," replied the lad, "thou'rt a bar. It won't, for it's going to Sheffield. And he withdrew, leaving the clerk looking after him in speechless amazement.—Liverpool Mercury.

Preparing Gold Powder

Finely powdered gold may be prepared by a most simple process. Take a small unglazed earthenware bowl with common kitchen salt, cover it and expose it for some hours to heat. The store oven is a good place for it. When the water has all been dried out put equal quantities of this salt powder and honey on a glass grinding plate and mix in with it the necessary quantity of gold leaf. Grind this up very gently, being careful not to press hard on the mass. The salt acts as a disintegrator, and the honey is used because it will not dissolve the salt. When the gold is reduced to the finest possible powder it must be thoroughly and carefully washed with an abundance of pure water to remove the salt and honey.

A FINANCIAL GENIUS.

His Great Success Did Not Impress the Bank President.

About the year 1084 the name of Portugal appears in the annals. Alfonso VII of Castile in that year gave over to Count Henry of Burgundy, who had left his native land to help fight the threatening Moor, the county of Portugal as a fief. The name Portugal comes directly from the Latin signifying the Port of the Castle being the old name for the town of Oporto. The proof of this is a mark the beginning of the separate existence of Portugal. Though for many years it was no more than a feudal dependency of Castile, nevertheless this child was the father of the later independence of Portugal. In the year 1143 the "Portugal" took the title of Kingdom and refused allegiance to any power, Muslim or Christian.—Rotary Magazine.

The average person winks his eyes every three seconds—that is to say, twenty times a minute or 1,200 times in an hour. This means that an ordinary day's work for a pair of eyelids is from 15,000 to 20,000 winks. A wink is accomplished in about one-fiftieth of a second, so quick that, as anybody may observe for himself, it does not in the slightest degree interrupt continuous vision. But the notion that winking is intended by nature to give repose to the eyes is a mistake, the object of it being merely to keep the surface of the sensitive little organs constantly moist. The moisture, which is necessary for the health of the eyes, is supplied, of course, by the tears. For this purpose—that is to say, to keep the eyes continually bathed—considerable quantities of tears are secreted. The water flowing all the time and would pour out over the edge of the eyelids were it not for an oil which is secreted and supplied by the glands along the rims of the lids. There is also a tear duct which carries off the superfluous water and gets rid of it. The mouth of the tear duct is plainly visible on the edge of the lower eyelid near the inner corner of the eye. It is a small pit, which leads down into the throat, so that when one puts into the eye anything with a pronounced taste, like cocaine, the flavor of it is plainly distinguishable in the mouth. The eyelids, if closed, are almost water tight. They do not exclude light, however, nearly as much as most people suppose.—Saturday Evening Post.

Safe and Swift

The people in No. 3 school in Bushby know that whenever Mr. Lamson paid them a visit there was one question he was sure to ask and the answer was always ready. The old ad selection might proceed geographical or arithmetical puzzles, but not Mr. Lamson, chief of Bushby's fire brigade.

THE WEATHER

Fair tonight and Thursday. Indications point the other way. Forget it, for nearly four years. Come on with your good times now.

We Democrats are cheerful and patient.

We gave 'em a run for their money, now let's smile.

The headlines of yesterday's papers looked sickening

Tom Watson and Hearst assaulted the party with a loaded club.

Don't think Hitchcock is quite as big a liar as Mack, in guessing results.

Never knew much about Mr. Taft. Expect he's a right good sort of a fellow, after all.

Did have a sort of an election here, since we thought of it, but it didn't amount to much.

Didn't find as many Republican votes mixed up in the box from Dothan beat as we feared.

Circuit court took up again, where it left off at Monday, and the wheels turn on as if nothing had happened.

Some few voters felt as if they were under suspicion and took pains to show which way they marked their tickets.

Confidence is a great thing with the money power, and we want to see how much of a confidence game we can work.

The Southerner who voted prohibitionist, populist, or socialist, or independence league, threw his vote over in a trash pile.

Mr. Taft will possibly invite Mr. Bryan to drop in when he is in the neighborhood of the white house, seeing as the people wouldn't.

We expect to have just as much to eat, just as much to wear, just as much fun, just as much good health, as if our man had gone in.

Watch the cotton market leap and bound, and bounce, according to previous advertising. Everything is due to be running on full schedule time by tomorrow, at least.

In the little territory where this sheet circulates we did the best we could, but feel that we have done no one an injury; feel that we took no stand that we wouldn't take again, if the occasion were to arise. This paper couldn't be anything but a Democratic paper, and expect any patronage from this section. We have no apologies to offer, and will never have, for running a Democratic paper. Any who might have got offended at the stand we took, can use their pleasure about it. Time wears away rather rapid, far too rapid to stay mad long over anything. We are busy about our business.

There were 496 votes polled in Dothan beat, and of this number but 18 Republicans were cast. This was much better than we expected.

Evidently more than this number wanted to vote the Republican ticket but feared the heat after of it.

At the court house box 292 were polled, and of this number, 18 were Republicans, while there were 10 out of the 204 polled at the City Hall.

Most of the boxes from the several beats in the county are now in the sheriff's office, but those bringing in the boxes did not think to get the results of the several precincts, consequently we will not be able to give the full returns until the votes are canvassed.

The constitutional amendments carried in the county, there being no organized opposition to any of them. Probably the biennial legislature amendment received the greatest opposition.

A man can be a strong prohibitionist in state and county politics, and then think more of the results in the national election than to expect that ticket to win. He ought to vote in one of the real parties.

C. A. Burke, of Pinckard, has taken charge of the management of the Dothan Theater. He is well known, thoroughly knows the business, stands for clean amusements, backed by highest recommendations. His show is on the Birmingham circuit, getting all the latest pictures that are being shown anywhere.

Sold Out.

Sootes & Gazis, fruit and grocery merchants, corner East Main and St. Andrews street, have sold their stock to Mose Saliba. Mr. Gazis will look after their other business up on Foster street.

The Ciceronian Society

The Ciceronian society is on a boom. The members are constantly taking more interest in the work.

One of the finest debates in the history of the Ciceronian society was that of Monday morning.

The visitor last week was Mr. Seabourn. Those Monday morning were Dr. Howell, Mr. Flowers, Mrs. Lila Bat heler and Misses Granberry and Clendinen.

With due appreciation to the many instructive talks we have listened to this term, we must say that the one given by Dr. Howell on Monday was the best. His talk seemed to be just what we pupils needed after going through the ordeal of examinations. We cordially invite all those interested in school work to visit us at chapel exercises and in the societies.

Money was subscribed last week by the teachers and pupils to seat the chapel room. The pupils were pleasantly surprised by finding it ready for them Monday. These seats do very well for the present, but what we need, to be progressive, is a new high school building with a handsomely furnished auditorium—one that will seat 1500 people.

Harriet Crawford, Neppie Kelly, Press Committee.

The Franklin society met again Monday Nov. 2nd and carried out an excellent program. The committee on the play rendered its report. The play decided on was "Cricket on the Hearth." This play is to be given by a few members of the society. We are going to invite the Ciceronians to meet with us on the day that the play is given. It has been arranged so that we can have the piano in the societies now. One society having it one Monday and the other the next. The music adds much to our program.

Gunnery Patron Saint

Why was St. Barbara chosen to be the patron saint of all gunners? It is one of those things which are to be known and which one ought to know but does not. Meanwhile there is the fact that she does intercede for all gunners by land or sea.

In the old French navy the St. Barbe was the gun room, and the name may be found with that meaning attached to it in all dictionaries. FAKERS OF INDIA.

One Who Tortured Himself Upon a Bed of Spikes

In India there are numerous penitents of different sects, called "Jakkars," "Yogis," "Tadins," "Pandarons," etc., who make a vow to live at the expense of the public and travel about begging, says the New York Press. The Fakere are Mussulmans, cunning, hypocritical and impudent. They do all sorts of silly stunts and are altogether a disgusting lot. Sometimes they assemble in troops of 8,000 or 10,000, levying contributions wherever they go. The total number of fakere in British India is about 900,000.

Among the various brands or breeds of Fakere you will find the "Dundee," the "Brumbucharee," the "Ramatu," the "Voshnuvu" and the genuine Mussulman Fakere. Many of the more enlightened Hindoos, especially the Brahmins, hold these mendicants in the utmost contempt and have assisted the British government as far as they dared in putting them to work. On the other hand, some rich property owners treat the fakere with the greatest reverence.

A few years ago there was a Fakere who lay on a bed of spikes and took the name of Purum Sontuntie, which means "self posessing" or "independent." At the age of ten this man began a life of self mortification. He would lie on thorns and pebbles. This torture he kept up until he was twenty, and then he wandered about as a Fakere, going from one holy place to another. At one town he shut himself up in a cell, vowing to do penance for twelve years. There he remained until vermin gnawed his flesh and left marks which lasted through life. The rajah, taking pity on him, opened the door of his cell and bade him step forth. The poor wretch was furious at this act of sympathy and heaped curses upon the rajah's head for breaking up on him.

Torture was nothing to Purum Sontuntie. "Give me a bed of spikes," he cried, and the rajah, frightened lest the curses of the ferocious Fakere should blight his reign, complied. And this bed of spikes became a sort of triumphal car for Purum. He set out immediately on long journeys and was drawn on this awful bed all around the country for thousands of miles, the poor Hindoos worshipping him as a god. He traveled in this way for thirty-five years.

Purum was, however, not content with the supposed merit of his self torture on the bed of spikes. He tried to put himself to greater pain by causing water to fall on his head day and night in the cold season, drop by drop, from a pot with holes in it placed over him, so that he might be constantly uneasy, and when the hot weather came he tortured himself in an opposite manner by causing logs of wood to be kept burning around him to make his sufferings from the heat greater. This wretch never earned a rupee.

Praoun Fouy was the most remarkable of all Fakere. He held his arms over his head until the circulation of the blood stopped. His nails grew to be talons, and his skin seemed to grow to the bone, so that the joints refused to work, and he could never take his arms down again. He sat with his legs tucked under him till they became useless. Every day he was brought out to a public place and seated upon a leopard's skin. The people came and supplied him with the most delicate food.

He Took It

While James H. Beard the artist was painting a portrait of Zachary Taylor he said to him, "Well, general I suppose you are to be our next president?"

"I hope not," granted the bluff old hero. "No military man has any business in the presidential chair: but if they offer it to me I suppose I'll be fool enough to accept it."

And he was

Everybody Had a Look
A bureau with a large mirror in it stood on the sidewalk about half an hour the other day while somebody was moving, and every person who passed took notice. The children played all around it of course, making faces at each other in it. Women looked conscious as they approached, and some tried to keep from gazing that way but it was no use. They wanted to see how their skirts hung and if their belts were all right in the back. The men adjusted their hats or felt their ties as they walked by with a frank stare. Even the mothers studied their own countenances and a little dog ran up and barked at himself. Everybody had a look. — New York Free Press.

An Unwary Charity.
In all the cafes and beer halls of Germany a large canister is placed on a table in the center of each establishment. Every time one of the guests lights a fresh cigar he gets up and deposits in the canister the end of the one he has just been smoking. This receptacle is a sort of alms box with a funnel shaped lid, secured by means of a padlock. A charitable association supplies all places of public resort with these boxes for the purpose of collecting odds and ends of tobacco, cigarettes and cigars. The produce of the sale is devoted to the purchase of clothing, which is distributed among poor children at Christmas. The charity is believed to be the most successful and insensate on record.

The Masterpiece.
"We have read your manuscript," said the publisher, and are convinced that you have written a masterpiece. It will make your fame secure."

"Ah," replied the gratified author, "I am glad to hear you say so. I hope your judgment may be verified. And will you bring it out immediately?"

No. That would be a fatal mistake. Nobody would ever take the trouble to discover its merits. Your labor would be wasted. Go out and do something to draw public attention to yourself. Leave your wife and run away with an affinity, get arrested as an anarchist or try to cross the Atlantic ocean in a barrel—anything to make everybody talk about you. We will have the book ready, so that it may be put on the market at the psychological moment. Good day sir. I hope we may begin to hear from you soon." — Chicago Record-Herald.

A Bad Spell or Two
Here is a paragraph in which many of the words have been spelled incorrectly. Can you find the words in which errors occur and re spell them correctly?

The mind of man naturally hates everything that looks like a constraint upon it and is apt to fancy itself under a sort of confinement when the sight is bent up in a narrow compass and shortened on every side by the neighborhood of walls and mountains. On the contrary, a spacious horizon is an image of liberty where the eye has room to range abroad to expatiate at large on the immensity of its views and to lose itself amidst the variety of objects that offer themselves to its observation. Such wide and undetermined prospects are as pleasing to the fancy as the speculation of eternity or infinity is to the understanding. — New York Mail.

The Kissing Germ Menace.
In the waiting room of the Union station at Washington recently the wife of a federal official who is extremely fond of dogs figured in an amusing incident.

In the next seat to her sat a small dog evidently belonging to a showily dressed woman in the seat just beyond as the canine, a friendly little beast, evidenced by snuggly ways of his tail his desire for friendly relations, the Washington woman leaned over and began to pet him on the head. Then, as she leaned even closer toward the dog, the showily dressed individual whose air of concern indicated her disapproval of the situation immediately reached out and withdrew the pet from the stranger.

"Excuse me," said she "but I never allow my dog to kiss strangers." — Philadelphia Ledger.

Perverse Women.
Walter Pater, an old man at fifty, bald as a coot and grotesquely plain, regarded every woman such as did Dean Swift, who wrote, "A very little wit is valued in a woman, as we are pleased with few words spoken intelligibly by a parrot." "You don't approve of marriage?" a friend once observed to Pater. "No," he replied, "nor would anybody else if he gave the matter proper consideration. Men and women are always pulling different ways. Women won't pull our way. They are so perverse."
